ECONOMIC STRESS ACROSS U.S. COUNTIES

Economic insecurity isn't one thing—and it doesn't look the same everywhere.

An analysis of 3,144 U.S. counties examines how poverty, prime-age nonwork, and severe housing burden overlap—and how those pressures are associated with food insecurity.

POVERTY

PRIME-AGE NONWORK

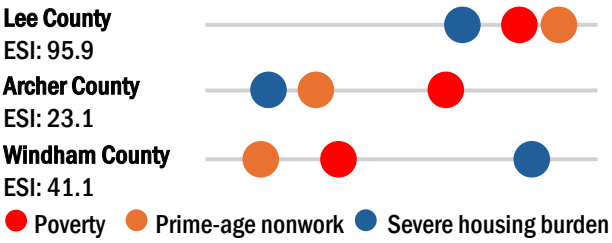

SEVERE HOUSING BURDEN

ECONOMIC STRESS INDEX

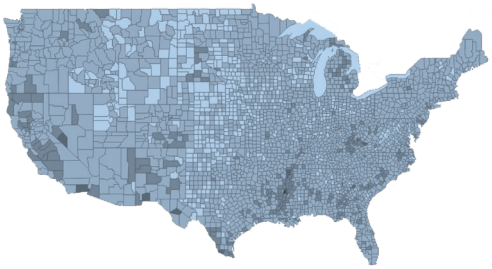

National county percentiles combined into one comparative measure.

SAME STRESS. DIFFERENT STORY.

Compare Economic Stress Profiles Across Counties

WHERE YOU LIVE MATTERS.

Region · State · County · Metro status

ECONOMIC STRESS 42.5% FOOD INSECURITY

Economic stress accounts for 42.5% of the variation in county food insecurity rates.

R^2 = .425 · p < .0001 · n = 3,142 counties

THE DATA SHOW US WHERE TO LOOK.